Boat types

- C-boats: for training and recreational rowing. These boats are wider and more stable than « racing shell » boats. C-boats are also recognisable by their keel and detachable rudder. C-boats come with lapstrake as well as smooth hull surfaces.
- Boat codes C-boats: example : C4x+ (C = type of boat; number = amount of rowers; x = sculling (2 oars); + = coxed); C1x or C2x- (C = type of boat; number = amount of rowers; x = sculling; - = no cox); C4+ (C = type of boat; 4 = number of rowers; no x = sweep rowing; + = coxed), etc.
- Racing shell-boats (in Dutch: “gladde boten”): Narrower, therefore more unstable boats, without a keel and with a permanent small rudder under the boat. These boats always have a smooth hull surface.
- Boat codes racing shell-boats: example: 4x+ (number = amount of rowers; x = sculling; + = coxed); 2x- (number = amount of rowers; x = sculling; - = no cox); 4- (number = amount of rowers; no x = sweep rowing; - = no cox); 4+ (number = amount of rowers; no x = sweep rowing; + = coxed), etc.
